Handwritten musical notation on a manuscript page, consisting of 13 staves. The notation is written in a stylized, rhythmic script using black ink on aged, yellowed paper. The staves are numbered 6 through 13 on the right margin. The notation includes various symbols, including vertical lines, horizontal lines, and small, stylized figures that resemble musical notes or clefs. Some staves have small, faint markings below them, possibly indicating a specific instrument or technique. The overall appearance is that of a historical musical score or a manuscript of a musical composition.

Handwritten musical notation on ten staves, numbered 14 to 21 on the right margin. The notation consists of rhythmic symbols (vertical strokes, beams, and flags) and rests, typical of early manuscript notation. Some staves have small text labels above them: "COP" appears above staves 14, 15, and 19; "COP" appears below staff 18; "COP" appears below staff 20; and "COP" appears below staff 21. The notation is written in black ink on aged, yellowed paper.

Handwritten text in a stylized script, possibly a form of shorthand or a specific dialect, arranged in horizontal lines. The text is written on a light-colored background with faint horizontal ruling. The script consists of various symbols, including vertical strokes, horizontal strokes, and small triangles, arranged in a way that suggests a sequence of characters or words. The text is organized into several lines, with some lines containing more complex symbols and others containing simpler ones. The overall appearance is that of a manuscript or a collection of notes.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical form of a European language, written on a single page. The text is organized into approximately 10 horizontal lines. Several lines contain decorative flourishes or illustrations, including a large, ornate initial 'S' at the beginning of the fourth line and a large, ornate initial 'M' at the beginning of the seventh line. The script is dense and flowing, with many ligatures and variations in letter shape. The page is numbered on the right margin, with numbers 72 through 79 visible. The paper appears aged and slightly discolored.

A page from a manuscript, likely a musical score, featuring ten staves of notation. The notation is composed of black symbols, possibly neumes or letters, arranged in a grid-like pattern across the staves. The page is numbered '50' in the left margin. The symbols are arranged in a way that suggests a rhythmic or melodic sequence, with some symbols appearing to be stylized letters or characters. The overall layout is clean and organized, typical of a formal musical manuscript.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical form of a European language, possibly German or Dutch. The text is written in a single column on a page with horizontal ruling lines. The script is dense and features many ligatures and flourishes characteristic of early modern handwriting.
